

Team/Project Acculiticssm

The Tactical Alternative to Team Building

The key to making your project a success lies at the intersection of your project team and your project plan, but often, after your project gets underway, hidden weaknesses in the day-to-day, hour-to-hour interaction of your team and your plan can disrupt project execution.

Keying in on those blind spots enhances project predictability and, ultimately, project success.

Some companies look to traditional team-building. Those seeking a competitive edge use Team/Project Acculitics because it provides:

- clear recommendations for improving team performance, project predictability, and business results
- project solutions more quickly and cost effectively than traditional consultants
- a tactical advantage that allows you to become – and stay – an industry leader

Ordinary Problems

Delivering on time and within budget is more than just a project goal for you and your team, it gives you credibility with customers and the market that can put you ahead of the competition.

But sometimes the best project plans don't deliver success because sometimes the best project teams don't work effectively. Both the plan and the team need to be finely balanced with one another.

Team performance and project execution suffer when:

- the relationship between your plan and the people asked to implement it has unseen weaknesses
- there are communication problems among your project team, managers, and outside suppliers
- there is unrecognized complexity or vagueness in your project plan
- long and inconclusive meetings rob you and your team of productive on-task time

You know that project management is more than project plans. It's more than the project team.

CompanySmith's Team/Project Acculitics experts understand too, and we focus on strengthening the relationship between them – finding the right balance for project success.

Extraordinary Solutions

With a wide range of industry, functional, and project management experience, our Team/Project Acculitics experts know how valuable project predictability is: allowing you to bring your project in for landing on time and within budget.

Team/Project Acculitics is a new, cutting-edge project success service that:

- is a tactically smart decision, delivering highest quality results at half the cost of traditional teambuilding
- requires less 'off-task' time and focuses only where attention is needed – your whole team won't be disabled by a facilitator with a flip-chart
- delivers rapid-results with specific recommendations available in as little as a week with only one hour of your team's valuable time

By analyzing your project plan data, Team/Project Acculitics combines our comprehensive package with specific input from your project plan to derive metrics describing the project requirements for team interaction and a survey to measure the real team working relationships. These two metrics are used to produce key recommendations to improve the effectiveness and predictability of your team's operation in the context of your project.

That's Team/Project Acculitics: Enhancing credibility. Ensuring predictability.

CompanySmith

82 Carrington Lane
Uxbridge, MA 01569

© 2004 CompanySmith, Inc. All Rights Reserved

Phone: 617-250-3210
info@companysmith.com
www.companysmith.com